

Our 2020 Workplaces...

- are more informal
- are more diverse
- people work flexibly from a variety of locations
- are more reliant on technology for communication
- different parts of our lives are more linked
- people tend to talk more openly about their lives
- we share more information with others - for example, on social media
- have more relaxed dress codes

What do these changes mean for our communication, behaviour and interaction?

What are the positives?

What are the challenges?

Where are the lines between what is Ok and what isn't?

How do we want to behave and interact with each other in the light of these discussions?
